ALL LIGHTS ARE INSPECTED

Lighthouse Inspector Leo Sahn, U. S. N., has returned last night from a tour of inspection of every light in the district, made on the tender Kukui. Accompanying Lieutenant Sahn were Lieutenant Roy Francis Smith Corps of Civil Engineers, U. S. N., and Mrs. Smith. The party was aboard about eight days in all, and reports a thoroughly enjoyable trip.

"The way the native boat's crew made difficult landings through the surf at some of the lights opened my eyes," said "Drydock" Smith this morning. "The boat they use for this work is a double ended affair, very staunch and strong, and without any deadwood, the steering being done with an oar. Not only do they shoot a heavy surf with it, but they make landings alongside of jagged rocks, and seemingly impossible reefs, it takes lively work to land at some of the lights, and you have to jump at just the moment that the boat is carried alongside the rocks by the swell or else the men have to back off and try it again."

Everything connected with the lighthouse service of Hawaii was found to be in good working order, and, from an official standpoint, the trip was uneventful.
